INTRODUCTION

DISPUTE RESOLUTION UNDER NAFTA

I am honored to introduce our first speaker today. Bob Cassidy is a former general counsel of the United States Trade Representative. He has been the senior counsel for the Southern Finance Committee on trade matters. He is a senior partner in Wilmer, Cutler & Pickering, a major Washington law firm. We very much appreciate his being here today to substitute for Gary Horlick. His record will speak for itself, and he will speak for himself.

Our second speaker, Simon Potter, is a partner in the Montreal law firm of Renault & Renault, where he specializes in administrative law as it relates to international trade competition, and commercial and corporate litigation. He is chairman of the LOP Committee on Free Trade Agreements and is a member of the roster of twenty-five Canadians available to sit on panels for binding review of Canadian-American anti-dumping countervailing determination.

He has a degree from McGill University of Law and also from Dartmouth College.
