Conclusion

Fi's' claims here are involve matters this Ct takes very seriously. It always has and it always will.
However, in this case, the assertion of not claims rises to the level of nothing more than mere symbolism. and, as previously indicated this case is nothing more than one of simple statutory construction.

159 "The powers of Congress to require military service — for the common defense are broad and far-reaching, 160 for while the Const. protects against invasions of individual rights, it is not a suicide pact."
