

Contributors

Jacqueline Acho is president of the Acho Group, a leadership coaching and consulting firm, and author of The Currency of Empathy: The Secret to Thriving in Business and Life

Madeline Chung is a health disparities researcher from Case Western Reserve University, studying pathophysiology and clinical workflows in the Stanford University-Cleveland Clinic MOST Fellowship and serving as a patient caregiver.

Silvia Fernández de Gurmendi is the 2020 recipient of the Inamori Ethics Prize and a leading figure in international justice, humanitarian law, and human rights and the first woman to serve as president of the International Criminal Court.

Sarah Jordan Reif is an integrated graduate studies student at Case Western Reserve University studying political science, biology, chemistry, and bioethics.

Damon Linder is a PhD student at Tiffin University and is advised by Perry Haan, DBA, professor of marketing in the School of Business.

Lt.Col. Richard A. McConnell, US Army, retired, is an associate professor in the Department of Army Tactics, US Army Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas

Khali Mofuoa is a research associate with the Department of Philosophy, University of Pretoria, South Africa.

Michael Scharf is co-dean of the Case Western Reserve University Law School, the Joseph C. Hostetler-BakerHostetler Professor of Law, Director of the Frederick K. Cox International Law Center, and host of Talking Foreign Policy.

Lt. Col. Andrew Thueme is an assistant professor in the Department of Army Tactics, US Army Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas

Jessica Wolfendale is professor and chair of the Department Philosophy at Marquette University. Her research focuses on the ethics of political violence and the moral psychology of state-sponsored violence.