

Faculty Publications

2000

News Flash: The Income Tax Remains Constitutional

Erik M. Jensen

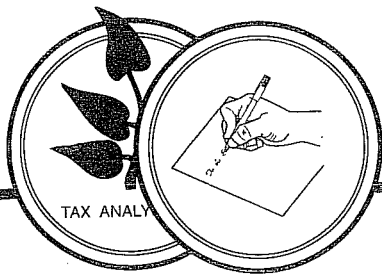

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholarlycommons.law.case.edu/faculty_publications

 Part of the Taxation-Federal Commons

Repository Citation

Jensen, Erik M., "News Flash: The Income Tax Remains Constitutional" (2000). Faculty Publications. 275.
https://scholarlycommons.law.case.edu/faculty_publications/275

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by Case Western Reserve University School of Law Scholarly Commons. It has been accepted for inclusion in Faculty Publications by an authorized administrator of Case Western Reserve University School of Law Scholarly Commons.

letters to the editor

News Flash: The Income Tax Remains Constitutional

To the Editor:

No doubt many of you have been worried, because of questions raised by an erudite essay in this journal, about the continuing vitality of the Sixteenth Amendment.¹ You may now rest easy.² At the strokes of midnight on December 31, 1999,³ computers generally declared the new year to be 2000, not 1900. If it's 2000, the Sixteenth Amendment has in fact been ratified.⁴ As a result, there is clear authority for an income tax that doesn't have to be apportioned among the states on the basis of population.⁵

Just thought you'd like to know.

Erik M. Jensen
David L. Brennan Professor of Law
Case Western Reserve University
Cleveland
January 4, 2000

¹The very important, indeed crucial, article, is "Y2K and the Income Tax," Tax Notes, June 14, 1999, p. 1641, by Erik M. Jensen.

²Or continue to rest uneasy, depending on your view of the Sixteenth Amendment.

³There were different strokes for different folks around the world.

⁴Quite a while ago, in fact (1913). If it were only 1900, however — well, you get the picture.

⁵Which is what would be required for a direct tax other than an income tax. See U.S. Const. art. I, sec. 9, cl. 4, etc., etc.

Searching online is this easy
...and much,
much quicker!

TAXANA

The TAXANA Library on LEXIS is designed to help you go straight to the information you need. It takes just moments to search through any database—or through all twenty. Whether you need the latest news headlines, full text documents, or articles packed with detailed analysis, TAXANA provides an easy access route.

To find out more, call Marion Marshall or Adrienne Eng at (800) 955-3444 or Lucia Smeal at (800) 634-2430.

51-97