SPEAKERS AT THE CANADA-UNITED STATES LAW INSTITUTE CONFERENCE ON THE MANAGEMENT AND RESOLUTION OF
CROSS BORDER DISPUTES AS CANADA/U.S. ENTER THE 21ST CENTURY

Guillermo Aguilar Alvarez has served as Chief Legal Counsel for the government of Mexico during NAFTA negotiations. For Mexico he was responsible for the legal review of NAFTA's final text and its legal implementation, and participated in the negotiation of the investment, intellectual property, and dispute settlement chapters. He was Counsel and General Counsel of the ICC International Court of Arbitration in Paris. He participates in domestic and international arbitration procedures as co-arbitrator, chairman of the arbitral unit, party counsel, and expert witness. He advises foreign countries in connection with the enforcement of arbitral awards in Mexico. He participates as a panelist in WTO disputes, and as an arbitrator in procedures under the ICSID Rules. Mr. Aguilar Alvarez's professional practice also includes advice on matters of antitrust, investment, and international trade. A graduate of UNAM, he has also performed research with the Instituto de Investigaciones Jurídicas (UNAM) and with the Centre de Recherche Scientifique (CRNS) in France. He has taught at law schools in Mexico, France, the Netherlands, and the United States.

James J. Blanchard practices law in Michigan and Washington, D.C. and is a partner in the Washinton D.C. law firm of Verner, Liipfert, Bernhard, McPherson and Hand. Mr. Blanchard served as the U.S. Ambassador to Canada, 1993-1996, being one of only a handful of ambassadors to receive the "Foreign Affairs Award for Public Service." While Ambassador, Mr. Blanchard managed a broad range of trade, natural resources, environmental and national security issues between the U.S. and Canada, providing crucial support to the passage of NAFTA and the Open-Skies Agreement. Previous to his tenure as Ambassador, Mr. Blanchard was Governor of Michigan. Mr. Blanchard previously served as Governor of Michigan, 1983-1991, and served four terms in the U.S. Congress, 1975-1983. Mr. Blanchard is credited with taking over the "toughest governor's job in America" in 1981, and was credited by Newsweek as having led one of the most dramatic economic comebacks in recent state government history; U.S. News and World Report listed Mr. Blanchard among the best governors in America. Mr. Blanchard served as Assistant Attorney General of Michigan, 1969-

1974. Mr. Blanchard received his B.A. in history and M.B.A. from Michigan State University and J.D. from the University of Minnesota.

Shirley A. Coffield is a partner with the law firm of Duane, Morris & Heckscher, LLP, and is an adjunct professor of U.S. International Trade Law at Georgetown University Law Center. Ms. Coffield began her trade career as Assistant General Counsel to the U.S. Trade Representative (from 1975 through the completion of the Tokyo Round of Trade Negotiations in mid-1979). In that capacity she served as advisor on issues involved in the multilateral trade negotiations and consequent implementing legislation. She served as principal legal advisor and Chairman of the Interagency Committee which developed recommendations to the President on Sections 301 and 201 of the Trade Act of 1974. From 1982-1985, Ms. Coffield served as Senior Counsel to the Deputy Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Textiles and Apparel where she served as advisor on all U.S. textile and apparel agreements. As a private practitioner, she represents clients regarding countervailing duty and antidumping, Section 301, import and export regulations, anti-boycott compliance, and trade law legislation. Ms. Coffield received her B.A. from Willamette University, M.A. from the University of Wisconsin, and J.D. with honors from George Washington University.

Richard O. Cunningham is senior international trade partner in the Washington, D.C.-based law firm of Steptoe & Johnson, where he practices in the areas of international trade, foreign investment law, and class action litigation. In addition to litigating cases under the U.S. import relief laws, Mr. Cunningham is active in representing clients with respect to U.S. Government trade policy issues and other international trade issues. He is known for achieving negotiated resolutions of import relief proceedings, and regularly advises foreign exporters and counsels foreign governments as to compliance with U.S. countervailing duty laws. Mr. Cunningham was active on behalf of clients in both the Tokyo Round and the Uruguay Round of Multilateral Trade Negotiations. He has particular experience in bringing about negotiated resolutions of disputes arising under the WTO. Mr. Cunningham received his B.A. and M.A. from Georgetown University, Phi Beta Kappa, and received his J.D. from George Washington University, where he was editor of the George Washington University Law Review, and is a member of the Order of the Coif.

Douglas Forsythe is head of the Economic Section of the Oceans, Environmental and Economic Law Division of the Canadian Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade. Educated at Carleton University and Osgoode Hall Law School, he practiced law in Ottawa, prior to joining the Department in 1987. Over the past several years, he has dealt with export control and sanctions files from both economic policy and law perspectives. Currently, he is responsible for legal issues arising from Canadian imposition of economic sanctions, as well as for legal advice on Canadian policy addressing issues raised by imposition of sanctions by other nations.

Carl Grenier entered the Canadian Foreign Service in 1976 and was assigned to the Canadian Delegation to the Tokyo Round of GATT Multilateral Trade Negotiations in Geneva from 1976 - 1979. In 1983, he joined the newly formed Quebec Department of External Trade and became the Director General of Trade Policy in 1987. In that capacity, he was involved with the Canada/U.S. Free Trade Agreement negotiations, as well as the Uruguay Round of the GATT. He became Deputy Assistant Minister in 1990, holding a number of high-level policy and management positions in three different ministries (International Affairs, Agriculture, Fisheries and Food, Industry, Trade, Science, and Technology) over the next ten years. He is currently the Executive Vice-President and General Manager of the Free Trade Lumber Council which post he assumed in June 1999. Mr. Grenier received degrees in mathematics and geography from L'Université Laval in Quebec.

David R. Haigh is senior partner in the Calgary law firm of Burnet, Duckworth & Palmer where he practices commercial litigation. He practices in both Canadian courts and in the field of international commercial arbitration. Mr. Haigh has been accepted as an arbitral panelist with several international arbitration centers including, among others, Hong Kong, the Canadian Foundation for Dispute Resolution, the American Arbitration Association (international panel), and the International Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Haigh has served as a Canadian member of NAFTA 2022 Advisory Committee regarding private international dispute resolution in the NAFTA region since 1994. He is currently advisor to the Canadian Ministry of International Trade on Chapter 11 of NAFTA governing investor-state disputes in the NAFTA region.

Leonard Legault was appointed Commissioner and became Chairman of the Canadian Section of the International Joint Commission in 1997. Mr. Legault has extensive experience in Canada-U.S. relations as an international lawyer and negotiator. As a career diplomat, Mr. Legault served from 1990 to 1993 as Senior Assistant Deputy Minister with the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade, and as Deputy Head of Mission and Minister (Economic) at the Canadian Embassy in Washington, 1986-1990. From 1979 to 1986 Mr. Legault was Legal Advisor to the Department of Foreign Affairs. Mr. Legault has been a member of the Permanent Court of Arbitration and has been deeply involved in the Law of the Sea, international trade, and dispute-settlement procedures. Mr. Legault is an officer of the Order of Canada and holds the Outstanding Achievement Award of the Public Service of Canada. He obtained his B.A. and LL.B. from the University of Saskatchewan. Mr. Legault has authored numerous articles on international legal issues. In 1997, the Canadian Council on International Law awarded Mr. Legault the John Read Medal for his distinguished contributions to international law and organizations.

Hamilton Loeb is the managing partner at the Washington D.C. office of Paul, Hastings, Janofsky & Walker. He heads their international trade, international communications services, technology controls, and international commercial arbitration practice areas. He has served as co-chair of the American Bar Association's International Trade Committee, and more recently as Secretary of the ABA International Law section, he has been involved in formulating ABA policy and programs related to international trade. He has advised the government of Canada on the WTO Basic Telecommunications negotiations and matters related to telecommunications and trade law. Mr. Loeb has also been involved with a number of other international trade areas including customs litigation, antidumping, and Court of International Trade proceedings. Additionally, he participates in arbitration matters as a counsellor and on proposed legislative changes. Mr. Loeb received his undergraduate degree from the University of Virginia. He graduated from Harvard Law School magna cum laude, where he was an editor of the Harvard Law Review.

Donald S. Macdonald is counsel at the Toronto office of McCarthy Tétrault. Between 1962 and 1978, Mr. Macdonald was member of Parliament, a member of the Cabinet of Prime Minister Pierre E. Trudeau, and held in succession the portfolios of the President of the Privy Council, Minister of National Defense, Minister of Energy, Mines & Resources, and Minister of Finance. From 1978-1988 he was a partner in McCarthy & McCarthy, in Toronto; during that period he served as Chairman of the Macdonald Commission, whose recommendations were the forerunner of the Canada/U.S. Free Trade Agreement. Between 1988 and 1991 he was the High Commissioner for Canada in Britain. Mr. Macdonald is Chairman of Siemens Canada Limited and Chairman of Celanese Canada Inc., and also serves on numerous other corporate boards. He is also a member of the Queen's Privy Council for Canada and a Companion of the Order of Canada.

Peter G. Morton is the Washington Bureau Chief for the Toronto-based The Financial Post, a daily business newspaper. He covers U.S. business and economic news specializing in international and domestic trade issues, corporate energy, and energy policy, agriculture and Latin America. He worked at the Calgary Herald from 1976 to 1989 in Calgary and in Ottawa, covering energy, economics, environment and politics. Joining The Financial Post in 1990, he worked in Ottawa prior to becoming the Washington D.C. Bureau Chief in late 1995. The recipient of a number of awards, including several National Business Awards, Mr. Morton was awarded the Dalton Robertson award in Canada for breaking news. He is also a former President of Canada's National Press Club. Mr. Morton is a graduate of Ryerson Institute in Toronto with a B.A. in Journalism. He was awarded a Southam Fellowship in 1988 where he studied economics and Canada-U.S. Relations at the University of Toronto.

Terence Murphy is the founder of Murphy & Weber, an international law firm based in Washington D.C., with associated offices in Helsinki and Frankfurt. He has represented a number of international corporations in business transaction of every kind. He is Director of the American Association of Exporters and Importers, representing the AAEI as an Officer of the Industry Coalition on Technology Transfer in Washington. Throughout his practice, Mr. Murphy has acted as Lead Counsel for businesses as an advocate and a negotiator. He has represented European firms on such legal issues as hostile takeover bids, antidumping, extraterritoriality, and punitive damages, while also representing U.S. and foreign firms in negotiating for U.S. Government approval for their projects. Mr. Murphy has also been heavily involved with encryption technology transfer issues on behalf of the Europe-based world leader in telecommunications, as well as with advising leading U.S. and European companies on a number of trade issues, notably economic sanctions and export controls. He received his Bachelor Degree from Harvard and his law degree from the University of Michigan.

Simon V. Potter is a partner in the law firm of Ogilvy Renault where he is a member of its litigation group specializing in administrative law as it relates to international trade, competition, commercial, and corporate litigation. Mr. Potter has served on Binational Panels resolving dumping and subsidy determinations under Chapter 19 of the FTA and of the NAFTA. He has appeared before numerous Canadian regulatory and agency boards including the Canadian International Trade Tribunal and the Competition Bureau. Mr. Potter has long been actively involved in various bar associations, and has been President of the Quebec Branch of the Canadian Bar Association. He also belongs to the Permanent Court of Arbitration, the Canadian Court of Arbitration, and the London Court of International Arbitration. He received his B.A. from Dartmouth and B.C.L. from McGill University.

Daniel M. Price is a partner in the Washington, D.C. law firm of Powell, Goldstein, Frazer, & Murphy. As chair of their International Practice Group, he advises U.S. and foreign-based business and trade associations on trade policy, international business transactions, and dispute settlement. Prior to joining Powell, Goldstein, Frazer & Murphy, Mr. Price was the Principal Deputy General Counsel at the Office of the U.S. Trade Representative where he negotiated trade and investment agreements with the former Soviet Union, Eastern Europe and Latin America. Mr. Price served as USTR's lead negotiator on investment issues in the NAFTA talks and as a legal advisor on the GATT Uruguay Round Investment Agreement. Mr. Price received his B.A. from Haverford College, Phi Beta Kappa, a Diploma in Law from Cambridge University, and his J.D. from Harvard Law School, where he was Articles Editor of the Harvard Law Review.

Robert K. Rae is a partner in international law firm of Goodman, Phillips & Vineberg. He has extensive experience in negotiation, mediation and arbitration, and shares responsibility within the firm for the operations of its foreign offices. Mr. Rae served as Premier of Ontario from 1990 to 1995, was elected eight times to federal and provincial parliaments, retiring from politics in 1996. Mr. Rae led the New Democratic Party in Ontario from 1982 to 1996, and served as Leader of the Official Opposition before becoming Premier. He is both a panel member of the Internal Trade Disputes Tribunal, and of the international commercial arbitrators with the Canadian Council for International Business. A published author, Mr. Rae is also a regular columnist in The Globe and Mail. Mr. Rae has a B.A. and LL.B. from the University of Toronto, and was a Rhodes Scholar in 1969. He obtained a B.Phil from Oxford in 1971 and was named a Queen's Counsel in 1984. In 1998 he received both an Honorary Doctorate of Laws from the Law Society of Upper Canada and was appointed to Her Majesty's Privy Council for Canada.

Davis R. Robinson is partner in the New York law firm of LeBoeuf, Lamb, Greene & MacRae specializing in international maritime and land boundary law, import and export trade regulation, inward and outward investment, and transnational litigation and international arbitration. His activities have included advising U.S. and foreign clients on a wide variety of international trade, and investment matters. Previously he was a partner at Pillsbury, Madison & Sutro in Washington, D.C. Mr. Robinson served as Legal Advisor in the U.S. Department of State where he was Chief Counsel to the Secretary of State and the Senior Attorney in the U.S. government in international matters from 1981 to 1985. Mr. Robinson received his B.A., graduating magna cum laude from Yale College, and his LL.B. from Harvard Law School, cum laude. He is the author of numerous articles on international law.

Matthew Schaefer is an Assistant Professor of Law at the University of Nebraska College of Law where he teaches courses in international trade law, international business transactions, international law, and an international trade law and policy seminar. Presently he serves as a director in the international economic affairs office of the National Security Council at the White House focusing on WTO and sanctions matters. In 1993 through 1995, he served as a consultant to the National Governors' Association and the Western Governors' Association on the NAFTA and GATT Uruguay Round Agreements and U.S. implementing acts of these agreements. He has received a B.A. in economics from the University of Chicago. His degrees from the University of Michigan include a J.D., magna cum laude and member of the Order of the Coif, an LL.M in international law, as well as an S.J.D degree.

T. Bradbrooke Smith practices with the firm of Stikeman, Elliot in the areas of public and international law. He has extensive litigation practice before The Supreme Court of Canada as well as the Trial and Appellate of the Federal Court. Before joining the firm, he practiced for nearly thirty years in the Department of Justice with the Government of Canada. He held positions as Solicitor to the Treasury, Director of the Constitutional and International Law Section, Assistant Deputy Attorney General, Civil Litigation, and Chief General Counsel. He was in charge from a Canadian perspective of the litigation concerning the debts of the International Tin Council, and was the principal negotiator on behalf of its state members in the settlement of its massive debt. He has also acted as counsel in numerous arbitrations. Additionally, Mr. Smith is involved in the Hague Conference on Private International Law, chairing numerous meetings and acting as the chairman of the Special Commission developing a world-wide convention on recognition and enforcement of judgments in commercial matters. He presently serves as the Canadian co-chairman of the Joint Working Group on dispute settlement with the American Bar Association and the Barra Mexicana. Mr. Smith received his B.A. from Mt. Allison University, and a M.A. and J.D. from Dalhousie University.

Kenneth C.C. Stein is Senior Vice-President, Corporate and Regulatory Affairs, of Shaw Communications, Inc. He is also a member of the Board of the Canadian Cable Television Association (CCTA), Chairman of the Cable Public Affairs Channel, and Chairman of the Cultural Industries Sectoral Advisory Group to the Minister of International Trade. Early in his career, he was involved in a number of software development and marketing projects in the computer industry with IBM and Alphatext Systems Limited. Thereafter, his career with the Government of Canada covered a span of seventeen years during which time he held a number of senior positions, including Deputy Secretary and Associate Deputy Minister in a range of departments including the Privy Council Office and Finance. Mr. Stein has played a key role in shaping public policy in a number of areas including broadcasting and telecommunications, employment and social policy, health care, fisheries, privatization, and regulatory affairs. From 1990 to 1994, he was President and CEO of the CCTA, representing over 800 members across Canada. During his tenure, the Association took a lead role in developing an overall strategy for the cable television industry as a basis for the industry's plans through to 2001. Mr. Stein received a B.S. in electrical engineering from the University of Manitoba, and is a graduate of the Advanced Management Program at Harvard Business School.
