WELCOME: DEAN PETER GERHART

Peter Gerhart assumes the deanship of Case Western Reserve University School of Law at an exciting time in the Law School's history. Having obtained regional as well as national recognition for educating excellent lawyers, the Law School continues its ascent to eminence. As Dean of the Law School, Peter Gerhart will lead the climb.

Dean Gerhart attended Columbia University School of Law, where he explored his interest in trade regulation. Following his first year, he served as a staff member on the American Bar Association Committee to Study the Federal Trade Commission. Upon graduation from Columbia, Dean Gerhart entered private practice in the antitrust area. He began his teaching career four years later at the Ohio State University College of Law. When he was appointed Associate Dean, he proved himself an able administrator as well as an esteemed antitrust scholar and professor.

We are indeed fortunate to have a person as qualified as Dean Gerhart at the helm of our Law School. As administrator, professor and advisor, he has much to contribute that will enrich our legal education. Dean Gerhart's enthusiasm and sensitivity to student concerns inspire our confidence in his ability to guide the development of the Law School.

The Editors of Volume 37 of the Case Western Reserve Law Review value Dean Gerhart's enthusiastic support of our endeavors. We dedicate this issue to Dean Gerhart in welcome, and we wish him a long and productive tenure at the Law School.
