PREFACE

This issue is the Review's fourth annual Symposium on Taxation. The articles in it are based on lectures presented in October, 1961, at the Annual Cleveland Regional Tax Institute sponsored by the Cleveland Bar Association with the cooperation of the Western Reserve Law School and the Cleveland Bar Foundation.

The symposium covers the broad areas of Professional Associations, Corporate Liquidations, and Family Tax Planning for the Owners of a Small Business. While the contributors are recognized as leading tax specialists in the Northern Ohio area, it is hoped and intended that their articles will appeal to the general practitioner as well as to the tax attorney.

The Review Staff thanks its contributors for their cooperation and guidance to the Review while these articles were being processed for publication. The staff also thanks the Tax Institute Publications Committee and its Chairman, Herbert B. Levine, for their efforts in the preparation and editing of this symposium.
