EDITORS' PREFACE

A New Name; A New University

With the publication of this first issue of Volume 19, what used to be the Western Reserve Law Review becomes the Case Western Reserve Law Review (cited CASE W. RES. L. REV.). This change in name reflects the recent merger of Western Reserve University with its neighbor Case Institute of Technology.

Science Challenges the Law

In 1967 the Law School celebrated its 75th anniversary. To commemorate the occasion an anniversary symposium was held on April 13, 14, and 15, at which time the speeches published in this issue of the Review were presented.

The Editors wish to express particular thanks to Professor Oliver Schroeder, Jr. who acted as coordinator for this symposium.

Faculty Downs Law Review

On October 8, 1967, the Faculty met the friendly challenge of the Staff of the Law Review in a game of softball as the highlight of an informal picnic at the home of Dean Louis A. Toepfer. The Faculty spoiled an otherwise perfect day for the members of the Review by "showing the boys how" to the tune of 21-10. After the Faculty tallied 14 runs in the first inning against the somnambulant students, there was little left but the futile cheering by wives and dates. The Staff members then consoled themselves at the cookout on the Dean's patio, looked at the beautiful autumn colors, and considered other ways of "getting even."
